Give Them the World

The decision to make a gift certainly is a personal one. You can demonstrate your unique commitment and dedication to UNT's College of Education by making a financial contribution to our Faculty and Staff Giving Campaign to support Graduate Student Travel.

As the University faculty and staff move to a comprehensive fundraising effort, our goal is to raise $100,000 by May of 2010 in support of a travel fund for graduate students. The first donation will be a $50,000 contribution from the Dean's Excellence Fund. You have the opportunity to support our graduate students as they travel to present papers, perform research and represent our College at conferences and presentations.

Higher Education Ph.D. student Baaska Anderson says, "Graduate student financial support for travel allowed me to attend professional meetings, share my research and network with scholars and future colleagues in my field. These are important experiences for graduate students' professional development." Dr. Rossana Boyd, Director of the Bilingual/ESL Certification Programs agrees, "This funding will help students travel to national conferences where they will develop networks with other professionals and expand knowledge in their field."

Every gift to this fund adds to our exceptional community of the very best students, educators, researchers, and alumni. Your gift not only gives financial support, but also shows corporate and private donors that our faculty and staff family believe in investing in the success of our students. You are vital to our long-term success; and your efforts will make a difference in the quality of the student experience.

We ask everyone to participate! For everyone who makes a gift, you will be recognized on displays in Stovall Hall, Matthews Hall and the Physical Education Building, and you will also receive a handy College of Education luggage tag for your own travels!

Thank you!

...for supporting students who are doing so much to represent UNT and our College!
